

Despite taking many wrong turns, finding the path to freedom was still possible for Hoa.

She should have been in school, but instead was working to support her family.

She thought she could leave Cambodia and have a better life in Singapore, but instead was trafficked to Malaysia.

She thought she would be working in the beauty industry, but instead was forced to be a sex worker.

She should have been enjoying life like any young girl, but instead served 15-20 men daily, contracting HIV.

Fortunately, Hoa escaped and found her way into Hagar's care.

Thanks to Hagar's support, not only did Hoa have an opportunity to heal, she also rebuilt her life.

VOLUNTEERS REQUIRED

Stop slavery. Heal & empower survivors.

You can help transform the lives of survivors of modern slavery.

Are you looking for a meaningful way to make a difference in the world?

Join our passionate team of volunteers.

Together, we are committed to eliminating slavery and transforming the lives of survivors.

HAGAR

What's the issue?

- Nearly 50 million people are currently living in slavery. More than any other time in history. That is an increase of almost 10 million over the last five years.
- One in four are children.
- Only 0.2% of survivors have access to support services like ours.
- Due to funds Hagar can only support 1 in 10 referrals who need our help.

Trafficking, slavery, and abuse are some of the most significant development issues of our time.

Hagar works in response to these issues through providing comprehensive recovery services to survivors, and by educating communities on how to recognise and prevent trafficking.
